"We in the global health and development communities cannot allow mothers and newborns to die from preventable and unnecessary complications, simply because the most basic of WASH services are not available. The Wellbeing Foundation Africa has committed to work with its partners to around the world to ensure that all countries implement the 2017 World Health Assembly Sepsis Resolution. Hand hygiene must be a quality indicator in every facility and a national marker of health care quality, with access to soap and water monitored and assessed."

H.E. MRS TOYIN OJORA SAKI
Founder-President, Wellbeing Foundation Africa

CLEAN HANDS FOR ALL

- Circa 40% of facilities lack water supplies, 19% are without sanitation and 35% do not have any hand hygiene materials (WHO/UNICEF. 2015)
- Pregnant women and their new-borns are especially vulnerable to the consequences of poor WASH services
- 10% of girls in Sub-Saharan Africa do not attend school during their menstrual cycle, and can miss as much as 20% of a given school year (UNESCO)

- May 2018 - H.E. Mrs Toyin Saraki launched a global WASH campaign in Abuja
- Wellbeing Foundation partnered with Global Water 2020 to accelerate progress toward water access and security for all people in developing countries
- Focus on advocacy for improved WASH standards, in Nigeria and around the world

- June 2018 – Wellbeing Foundation meets with the US State Department, the World Bank, the Center for Strategic and International Studies, the American Academy of Sciences and members of the United States Congress
- Fact-finding mission: for Nigeria to achieve the WASH SDGs, it must invest at least three times more than it does today

- September 2018 – Wellbeing Foundation partners with Unilever Lifebuoy Nigeria and Sightsavers to improve hygiene practices to impact more than 2 million children throughout 2019
- Wellbeing Foundation expanded its programmes to include WASH - based on its Adolescent Skills and Drills, Personal Social and Health Education Curriculum
- 237 children at Ogun State Summer Camp taught hand-washing techniques by the Wellbeing Foundation
